

I graduated from BYU's Information Systems program in 2013. During my study, I learned how to program and to apply those skills to solve business problems. As a student, I also participated in a program called Y-Serve, which helped give me a desire to serve others and share my unique beacon of light.

In early 2022 I learned about a nonprofit in my community that wanted a website. I built them one free of charge, which led to finding up to $15,000 per year in donor matching funds. The donor discovered our local chapter after I submitted a form online to add a link for our local nonprofit's chapter on the nationwide parent page. The donor has been matching what the nonprofit raises at 50% or $0.50 for every $1.00 raised up to $5,000 per crowdfunding meeting.

Sharing my light by using my technical skills to help a nonprofit have an online presence and look more professional was meaningful to me. Our loving Heavenly Father has directed us to be "anxiously engaged in a good cause" (Doctrine and Covenants 58:27), because it brings about "much righteousness." I am grateful for my light and its influence.
